

With Uncle Sam's Soldiers on the Mexican Border

COLONEL LOTUS NILES, OF THE THIRD ARTILLERY, SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS.

General Carter at San Antonio, Texas.

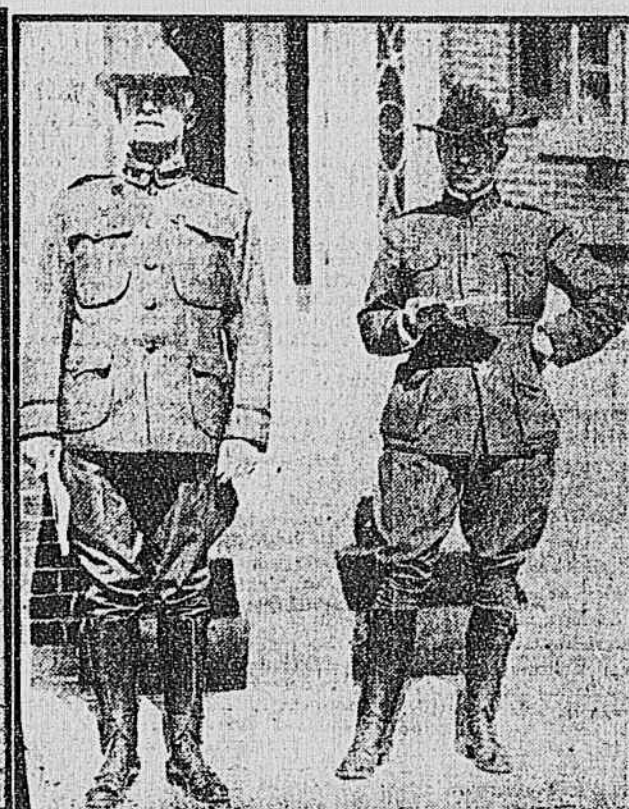

MARINES PRACTICING SCALING THE WALLS AT GUANTANAMO BAY.

Major Frank B. McCoy, of the Seventeenth Infantry.

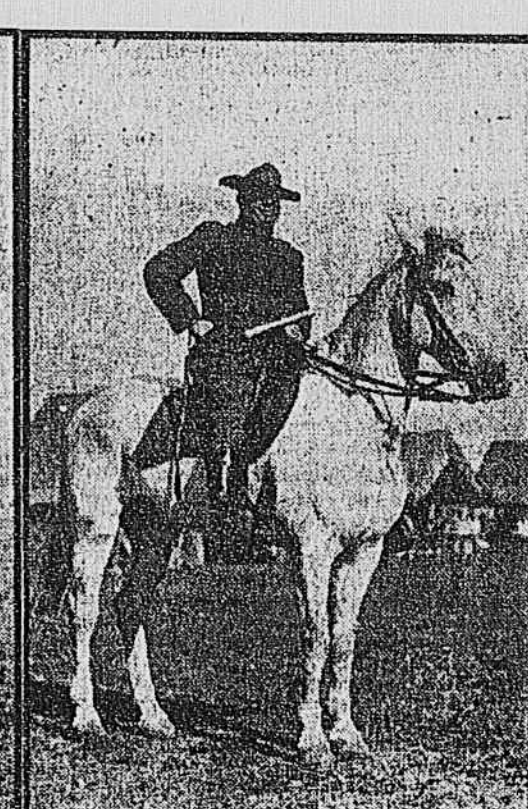

Colonel Jim Parker, of the Eleventh Cavalry, San Antonio, Texas.

Left to right—Colonel Clarence Page Townsley and Major Davis.

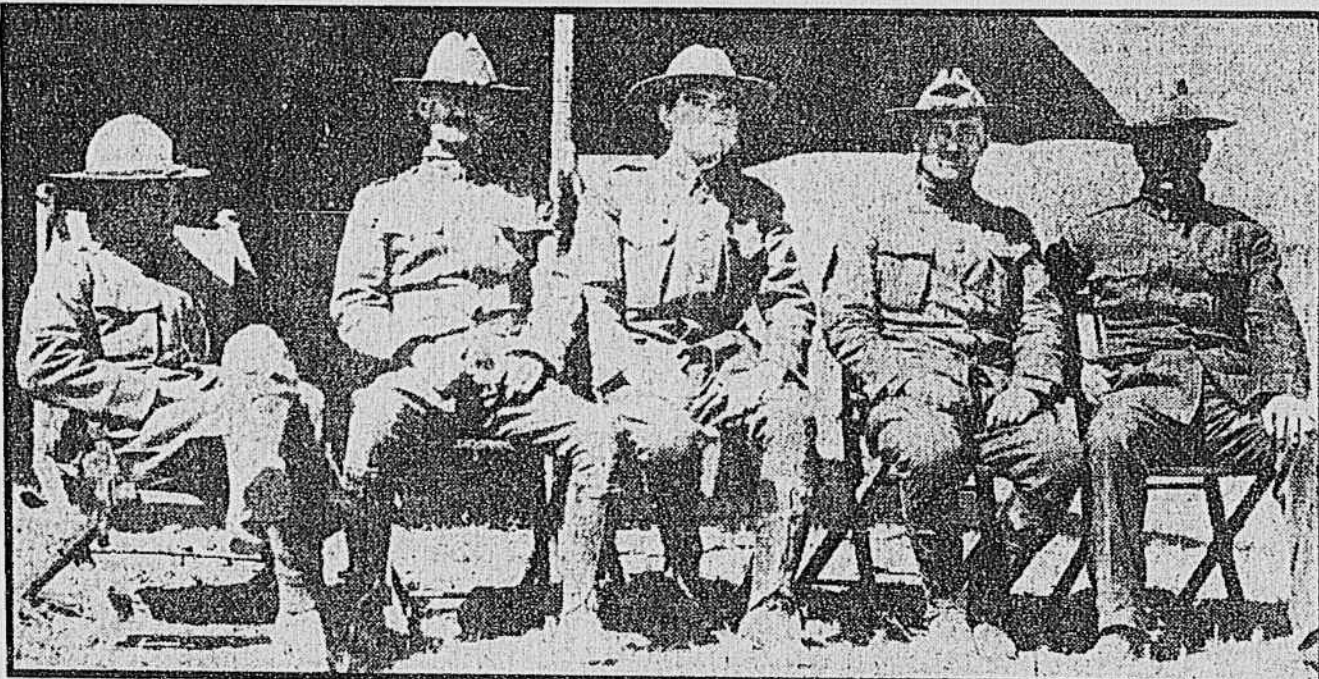

Major Cabell, of the Eleventh Cavalry, at San Antonio, Texas.

Major-General Goode, of the Eleventh Cavalry, at San Antonio, Texas.

Left to right—Lieutenant Cox and General Schuyler.

OFFICERS OF THE FOURTH CAVALRY.
Left to right—Captain Hughes, Captain Renkford, Colonel Steever, Major Edger, of Medical Corps, and Lieutenant Gardsbire, quartermaster.

TWENTY-EIGHTH INFANTRY WORKING OVER NEW MACHINE GUN AT SAN ANTONIO.

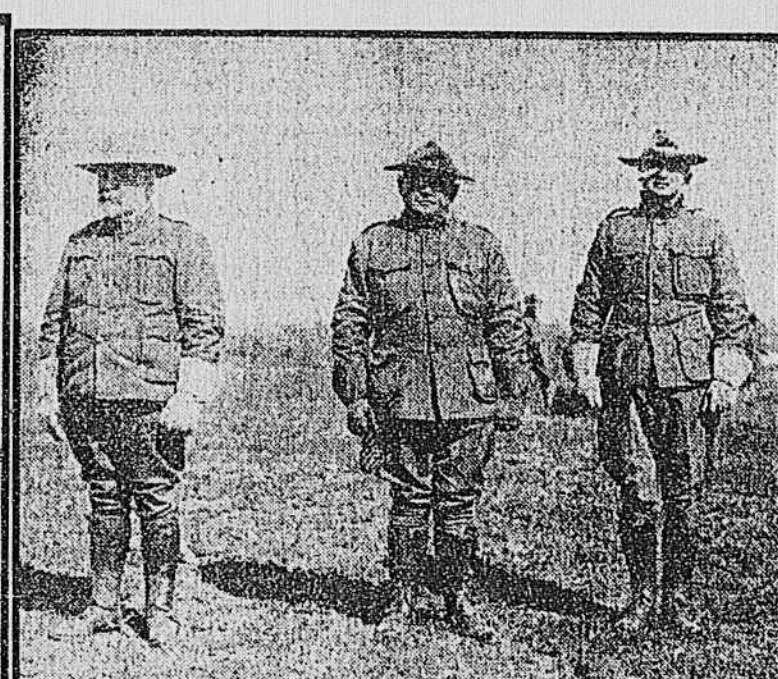

Members of the Twenty-eighth Infantry preparing their beds for a night's rest after day of drilling at San Antonio, Texas.

Major Hans W. Von Herewarth and aides watching flights at San Antonio.

Left to right—Colonel Plummer and General Hoyt, of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, watching manoeuvres at San Antonio, Texas.

Left to right—General Hoyt, commander of the Third Brigade; Major Frier, of the Tenth Infantry, and Lieutenant Wyman, of the Seventeenth Infantry—all of the Third Brigade.

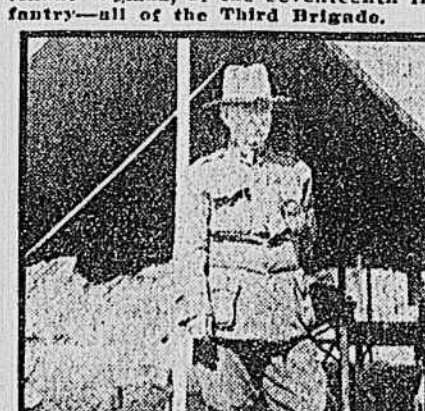

Left to right—Colonel Loughborough, of the Thirteenth Infantry; Captain Cole, of the Eighteenth Infantry, at San Antonio, Texas.

General Schuyler standing and Colonel Niles on horseback.

Company C, of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, lining up to be vaccinated at San Antonio, Texas.

GENERAL CARTER, in front of his tent at San Antonio.

SOLDIERS ON THEIR WAY TO TAKE A BATH. Note each man carries a towel under his arm or in his hand.